To persons whose business or pleasure takes them through the districts that have for so long a time been infested with dives, the good results of the crusade conducted against the outlaws of New York by The Evening World are ocularly demonstrable.

Their modesty is no longer shocked by the open display of lawlessness that formerly obtained in the vicinity of the dives; they are no longer accosted by the female partners of bulge-gear workers and thugs, and their sense of propriety is no longer assailed by the words of ribald songs shouted for the delectation of the patrons of assignation annexes to certain saloons.

The attention of those whose callings are far removed from the dive-ridden districts is invited to the table at the head of this column, which briefly summarizes the work of The Evening World, undertaken in the public service.

But all of the dives are not yet closed. Two notorious resorts, the class of people who frequent them and the practices which obtain there are described to-day. There are still others of the same sort to be ferreted out and investigated.

The battle will not be over until all the outlaws have gone.

ANOTHER SHUTS UP SHOP.

Most of the Dive-Keepers Have Had Reform Thrust Upon Them.

Another of New York's outlaws has succumbed to The Evening World's anti-dive crusade and joined the small army of retired dive-keepers.

He is Louis Walters, of 385 Bowery, who was indicted Tuesday for keeping a disorderly house, since which time he has been quietly running his bar alone, excluding all females from the stuffy little assignation annex separated from the barroom only by swinging doors and a half-partition.

Early last evening Walters' den was closed altogether. The shades were drawn, and there was a single gas jet burning inside. Many of the old frequenters concluded that Mr. Walters had determined to brave it out and do business "on the dead quail," admitting to his den only those upon whose secretiveness he knew he could depend.

These persons were mistaken. There was no one in the place but Mr. Walters, his employees and one or two intimate friends, who held a solemn convocation and decided that the best thing to do for the present was to "lay low."

There were frequent callers at the dive, but all attempts on the part of the habitués to gain an entrance were vain. All comers were met at the family entrance by a young man who announced: "All closed, gentlemen," and then promptly slammed the door in the faces of the would-be patrons.

At 10 o'clock Walters and his minions locked and left the dive after having lowered the curtains so as to show the deserted interior.

By his action last night, Mr. Walters is almost entitled to a place in The Evening World's table alongside the outlaws of New York, who have permanently closed their doors. These already included in this list are Mr. Billy McGlothly, Mr. Tom Gould, Mr. Carey Welch, Mr. Frank Stevenson, Mr. Alfred

Davis and Mr. August Guidon. All their dens were tightly closed as usual last night and not the least sign of life or activity was visible in any of them.

Mr. Davis had the shades partly drawn in his Excise Exchange at 336 Bowery last night, so that pedestrians could not look in, and make cruel remarks concerning the big bouquet on his bar. It was easy to see, however, that the place was unoccupied.

The coteries of outlaws who have been resting on their oars and "awaiting developments" continued their tactics last night. They are Mr. Daniel Scribner, of the Pickwick, on Broadway, near Thirty-sixth street; Mr. Tom McCormick and "Honest" John Kelly, of Sixth avenue, near Thirty-second street; Mr. John Wulfer, of 72 University place; Mr. Jim Sullivan, of 78 Third avenue; Mr. Simon Buttner, of 304 Bowery; Mr. Paul McCarthy, of 327 Bowery; Mr. John J. McAlister, of 300 Bowery, the proprietor of the Lenox, at 271 Bowery; Mr. John H. McGurk, of 285 Bowery; Mr. John J. Murphy, of 34 Bond street; Mr. Charles Smith, of 197 Bowery, and Mr. Frank Stevenson, West Third and Sullivan streets.

At the request of the Board of Excise the police have been quietly investigating these and other resorts and are to make their reports to the Board of Excise Monday when a wholesale revocation of licenses may be confidently expected.

TWO NOTORIOUS DENS.

They Are on the Bowery, and Are Veritable Robbers' Roosts.

Among the few of New York's outlaws who still persist in setting public decency at defiance are two men whose places have just been brought to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is only a question of hours as to the time when these two men and some others will be brought up with a round turn.

This particular pair conduct places that have long been notorious. They are Ignatz Buttner, who holds the license for the "Orpheum Concert Hall" at 294 Bowery, and Louis Stajer, who runs the "Music Hall" at 255 Bowery.

Both these resorts are being investigated by the police at the request of the Excise Board, but this fact makes no apparent difference in the conduct of the proprietors. There may be "method in their madness," however. It is possible that, expecting the fate which overtook Mr. Billy McGlothly and is now hovering over others of his ilk, they have determined to seize upon the present as probably the last opportunity to fill their capacious coffers with ill-gotten gains.

Indeed, Mr. Ignatz Buttner has been known to have expressed this very intention in these words: "DON'T KNOW HOW LONG THE GRIFT WILL LAST. 'I'm here to make money. I don't know how long the grift will last, so I'm going to make it as fast as I can while I'm here. See?"

Mr. Ignatz Buttner might be called the King of Dive-keepers if extensive possessions are any indication of outlaw royalty. He is popularly credited with running not only the "Orpheum" at 294 Bowery and the den at 304, which has the name "Simon Buttner" on one window and "Bart Connor" on the other, but also the "People's Assembly rooms," further down the street.

Most of Mr. Ignatz Buttner's time is said to be spent at 304 Bowery, of which resort Simon Buttner, a brother, is the nominal proprietor.

While Ignatz, who is also known as "Jim," holds the license for the "Orpheum," the nominal boss is another brother, who for some occult reason is called by the name of Gomboy. A waiter in the den is authority for the statement that he is the same Gomboy, who a year or two ago ran the "Orpheum," then known as the "Crystal," in such a lawless manner that he got in very bad odor with the city authorities.

Buttner, Stajer and one or two other outlaws of the Bowery claim that their places are eminently respectable and come within the law because they have licenses for the stage performances which are ostensibly the chief attractions of the place.

There are concert gardens or music halls on the Bowery where enjoyable and decent variety entertainments are given, and it is a frequent sight to see a workman and his family gathered about a table, enjoying for the cost of a few glasses of beer an entertainment that they could otherwise not afford to witness.

It is this class of resorts that Buttner, Stajer and others of their ilk claim to run when they make application for excise licenses and licenses to give stage performances, but the claim is a preposterous one.

BLINDS FOR DEPRIVITY AND VICIOUSNESS.

The "stage performances" in the resorts presided over by these outlaws are simply given as a blind and are scarcely noticed by the patrons of the places, unless, perhaps for the purpose of unmercifully gulling the variably poor sticks that are employed as "artists."

The real attractions of Buttner's and Stajer's dens are the depraved women who swarm into them and lure the unwary to follow. Once in the place the "suckers," as they are termed, are induced to pay ridiculously extravagant prices for the vile liquors, are sometimes plied with drugs and deliberately robbed.

None of these females, if known—and it is easy to distinguish them—are admitted to the more respectable concert gardens, where no woman can enter without an escort. If one does slip in by chance, the first sign of crooked work on her part invokes her immediate expulsion from the place.

But not so at Buttner's and Stajer's. The presence of decent women is not desired there, but the abandoned and depraved are eagerly welcomed and in many cases paid a percentage on the drinks they induce their victims to buy.

One or two instances of fact will suffice to show plainly the character of these resorts.

HOW THE UNWARY ARE TREATED.

A night or two ago a young man, apparently under the influence of liquor, staggered into Stajer's, and with difficulty made his way to the middle of the room. It was real difficulty, too, for the den was jammed with

THE HEALTH OF THE QUEEN.

It Remains Good, Notwithstanding Alarming Reports.

Burial of the Dead Prince to Take Place on Wednesday.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Preparations for the funeral of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale are being made on all sides at Sandringham by the railway companies and at Windsor Castle.

It is believed that the statements regarding the condition of the Queen's health are greatly exaggerated. As has before been stated she is greatly affected by the death of her favorite grandson and her depression would naturally tend to make her more liable to an attack of the prevailing epidemic of influenza; but that she is seriously or at all unwell is not shown by the arrangements that have been made for her presence at the funeral ceremonies.

As has now been decided, Her Majesty will remain at Osborne House until either Monday night or Tuesday morning. She will then proceed on the royal yacht to Portsmouth, from which place a special train will convey her to London. She will arrive at Windsor Castle early on Tuesday.

The body of the Duke will be conveyed from Sandringham and will arrive at Windsor Castle on the same day.

All the details of the funeral have not been arranged, but it is announced positively that the interment will take place at noon on Wednesday. The body will be placed in the crypt in St. George's Chapel.

LATER.—It has been ascertained this afternoon that the Queen remains in good health. She drove out yesterday in company with Princess Louise and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. She personally dictated to the Earl of Lathom, the Lord Chamberlain, her orders in regard to the state mourning.

To-day a message was received at Windsor Castle directing that the royal apartments be placed in readiness for occupancy by her Majesty.

The New Khedive Comes to Possess His Father's Throne.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CAIRO, Jan. 16.—Prince Abbas, the new Khedive, entered the harbor at Alexandria from Trieste. His steamer was accompanied by a number of British warships, which as they entered the harbor thundered forth a royal salute, and the Egyptian vessels took to the water in rainbow style, and the sight was very pretty.

All the members of the Egyptian Cabinet, Gen. Grenfell, Sir John D. Gordon, and the Egyptian army, and Justice Scott, Egypt's judicial adviser, and Prince Hussein boarded the steamer and welcomed the Khedive.

At 8.30 o'clock the Khedive landed from the steamer and was received with great enthusiasm. He was met by the principal civil and military officials, and a guard of honor composed of British and Egyptian troops. At 10 o'clock he took a special train and proceeded to Cairo.

Resignation of a Wisconsin Bishop Won't Be Accepted.

HOSEA, Jan. 16.—The Bishop of Green Bay, Wis., the Rt. Rev. Frederick Xavier Katz, D. D., has sent his resignation to the Vatican. It will not be accepted.

Bishop Katz was appointed to the see July 13, 1886, and was consecrated Sept. 21, 1888.

Finland Imports Will Not Be Especially Favored by Russia.

The Mayor was still suffering with sore throat, but considered it safer not to venture out of doors.

Pittsburg "Leader" Burned Out.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—Shortly before midnight last night fire broke out in the Leader Building, on Fifth avenue, this city. The fire destroyed the building and communicated to the Grand Central Hotel, which is situated on the same block.

The fire was caused by a gas leak in the boiler room of the Leader Building. The fire spread rapidly and in a few moments the whole building was in flames.
